The Outlook

Bob Waterfield "cleaned house" in 1960 and still managed to improve upon the Rams' 1959 final standing and won-lost records. With 11 rookies on his roster and veterans still learning the style of the new coaching staff, the Rams wound up with a 4-7-1 record. The team finished 2-10 in 1959.

Now, the coaching staff anticipates even greater improvement this year.

"I believe we will be enough improved to win half of our league games and, if we get the breaks, could do even better," Waterfield has said.

The usually-conservative Waterfield backs up his prediction by pointing to the tailend of the 1960 season which saw his team compile a 4-3-1 record in its final eight league games.

In those final eight, the Rams exchanged sock-for-sock with the best in the division. They stopped Johnny Unitas' string of consecutive games with touchdown passes and beat the Colts 10-3. They whipped the Packers at Milwaukee and then held the vaunted Green Bay running game to only 58 yards although bowing in L.A. They also split two games with the fast-closing Detroit Lions.

So, if they can take up this season where they left off in 1960, the Rams should make Waterfield's .500 prediction come true. Let's examine the situation more closely:

RETURNING VETERANS: Numerically strong and physically stronger than in most seasons. The 11 rookies of 1960 now pick up the title of "veteran" and the year's experience for this crew would make a big difference.

LOSSES: No losses via retirement, but there were trades.

TRADES: Biggest off-season trade was a three-way deal which saw the Rams acquire quarterback Zeke Bratkowski from the Bears and defensive back Lindon Crow and a first draft choice from the New York Giants. The Bears got Rams' QB Bill Wade, while the Giants got the Rams' John Guzik and the Bears' Erich Barnes. Coaching staff hopes that the deal will strengthen club at two positions.

In a swap of first round choices, the Rams bolstered the offensive tackle position by acquiring Frank Varrichione of the Steelers in trade for defensive lineman Lou Michaels.

In the league-wide plan to stock the new Minnesota franchise, the Rams surrendered lineman Charles Janerette, linebacker Jerry (Sparky) Stalcup and defensive halfback Don Ellersick.

TEAM AGE: More than one-third of the Rams' 36-man roster will be composed of rookie or second-year pro players so the club can be classified as a young team by NFL standards.

PROMISING ROOKIES: Although the Rams drafted primarily to fill offensive guard and tackle posts, the two most highly-publicized rookies this year are linebacker Marlin McKeever and offensive halfback Pervis Atkins.

Both SC's McKeever and New Mexico State's Atkins were named to all-America teams as juniors and seniors and they figure to make the Rams 1961 team.

The Squad

OFFENSIVE END: Waterfield predicts a more effective group of pass receivers this season because he expects a return to form by Del Shofner, plus a comparable performance from Jim (Red) Phillips and natural improvement from second-year pro Carroll Dale. Phillips finished third among all NFL pass receivers last season with 52 receptions, the top figure by a Ram in the past six seasons. Dale caught 19, most of them for long yardage, in his rookie year. Shofner, who in 1958 and 1959 was 1-2 and 2-1 with the Colts' Ray Berry, slumped to only 12 catches. Del was hampered by injuries, however, and there is no reason not to expect his return to the head of the class again this year.

There is a possibility that veteran fullback Ollie Matson will be given a shot at a tight end position. Waterfield likes Matson's pass catching and blocking abilities. Possibilities among the rookie crop include lanky Duane Allen from Santa Ana College and Elbert Kimbrough from Northwestern, but both probably will be tried first in the defensive backfield.

DEFENSIVE END: Gene Brito, who will be playing his 10th season, and Lamar Lundy, who is embarking on his fifth campaign, loom as the starters again this year. John Baker figures as top replacement at these positions.

OFFENSIVE TACKLE: Jim Boeke, who won a starting job at mid-season in 1960, has added 10 pounds to his 6-5 frame and, at 245 pounds, should be an improved performer. On the other side, Charlie Bradshaw again figures to get the starting call. But both must fight the challenge of veteran Frank Varrichione, acquired from the Steelers.

Rookie challengers are headed by 250-pound Charles Cowan of New Mexico Highlands, whose reputation for agility and speed make him a serious candidate. David Jones, rookie from South Carolina State, and former Chicago Cardinals lineman Wayne Bock are other possibilities.

DEFENSIVE TACKLE: John LoVetere, who blocked five kicks to set an all-time Rams record, and George Strugar were the starting tackles in most games last season and both will be back this year. Veterans John Kenerson and John Baker will vie with newcomers Cowan, Jones and Bock for reserve jobs.

OFFENSIVE GUARD: Co-captain Buck Lansford will be back for his seventh NFL season and is expected to team with sophomore pro Roy Hord at the guard posts. Hord, who undertook an off-season weight-lifting campaign, is expected to weigh in 10 pounds heavier this year than last year when he became a regular at mid-season. Rookies at the offensive guard posts are more numerous and more important than those at any other position. Draftees slated for trials here include Harold Beaty of Oklahoma State, Willie Hector of COP, and Bruce Olderman of Allegheny. Free agent candidates include Dick Keelor of Long Beach State and former semi-pro Angelo Brovelli. It is possible, too, that Marlin McKeever may be tried at guard.

CENTER: Capable, classy and clever is returnee Art Hunter, who made several all-pro teams in his first campaign with the Rams in 1960. Hunter, former Cleveland Brown, will be backed up by Les Richter. Lone rookie candidate is Richard Max.

LINEBACKERS: The top trio of 1960 was composed of Richter, Bill Jobko and Jack Pardee. These three will be back again as will No. 1 reserve Bob Long. Richter will be playing his eighth season, Jobko his fourth and Pardee his fifth.

Coaches and fans alike expect Marlin McKeever to make good as a linebacker. Marlin likely will understudy Richter at the middle spot as well as backing up both Jobko and Pardee.

QUARTERBACK: Zeke Bratkowski, acquired during the off-season in the trade which sent Bill Wade to Chicago, will vie with Frank Ryan and Buddy Humphrey for the starting job. Ryan divided the starting assignments with Wade last year, while Bratkowski shared the Bears' job with Ed Brown. Humphrey, moving into his third season as a pro, is expected to offer a serious bid for the job, too.

OFFENSIVE HALFBACK: One of the most lively battles at the Rams' training camp should be the fight among returnees Clendon Thomas and Dick Bass and rookie Pervis Atkins for the starting slotback job. Thomas and Bass alternated at the position in 1960, but Atkins could crack the lineup. Pervis, a two-year all-american at New Mexico State, is advertised as an excellent pass catcher and runner and a capable blocker.

The running back or left half spot again will be held down by Jon Arnett, the Rams' leading ground gainer in 1960. Tom Wilson, slated for a shot at the fullback's job, might wind up at the No. 1 reserve here.

DEFENSIVE HALFBACK: Possibly the strongest Rams unit in many seasons is being assembled. Acquisition of Lindon Crow from the New York Giants via trade gives Eddie Meador a strong runningmate at the corner posts. Ollie Matson, who did a magnificent job at safety in the final two games of 1960, looms as a regular at that spot in 1961 and his probable partner is second-year pro Charlie Britt, who stole five passes in his rookie year. A part-time starter in 1960, Vernon Valdez must battle rookies Kimbrough and Allen for a job this season.

Both Kimbrough and Allen have great jumping abilities in addition to good speed. Kimbrough was an all-Big 10 performer at Northwestern, while Allen was a JC all-American at Santa Ana College.

FULLBACK: Pre-camp plans of coaching staff had Tom Wilson moving from halfback to fullback this year. Wilson gave fine performance in final 1960 game at fullback and he has the size to fill the job. Joe Marconi looms man to beat for the job, while Matson, counted on elsewhere, might be called on to go both ways.

Ram Coaching Staff

BOB WATERFIELD
Head Coach

In 1960, his first season as a head coach of the Rams, Bob Waterfield fearlessly experimented with playing personnel and installed basic changes in offensive and defensive methods of strategy. After the season had ended, it was obvious that the early-season experimenting and new systems of play had created an improved Ram status.

In the final two-thirds of the season, the Ram record of 4-3-1 was a considerable improvement over any similar schedule segment in the last two years.

But the end of the year found the "new regime" still intensely dedicated to an upward swing in the Ram fortunes. In the next few weeks, Waterfield and his staff studied the previous season's films in intricate detail, and shortly thereafter a succession of player trades re-affirmed Bob's willingness to make any move or change which might help his long range re-building plan to succeed.

This type of approach by Waterfield is not new. In his eight years as a Ram quarterback, Bob was a strategist of vision. Although he was hailed, rightfully, as a great comeback passer in such memorable "come-from-behind" performances as the 28-28 tie with the Eagles in 1948 and the 30-28 win over Green Bay in 1952, there are those who point out that the victories were indicative of something else. In setting up situations and experimenting with the defenses in the early stages of the games, regardless of the surface appearances of the scoreboards, Waterfield was plotting his actions for late-game superiority.

It is not surprising that, in eight seasons as a Ram player, Waterfield's teams finished in first place (or in a first place tie) five times, and second, third and fourth once each. No Waterfield-led team ever had a losing season. The only two Ram world titles have come with Bob as the team's indisputable field leader.

The 1961 season will mark Waterfield's second year as Ram mentor. If past history is an indication of the pattern, "Mr. Ram" will have his forces back into a position of real contention well in advance of the contract's five year term.

Waterfield, a native of New York State, was a grid star at Van Nuys High School. After a season's delay, Waterfield entered UCLA, and played on the varsity in 1941, 1942 and 1944. He was an All-Coast player in 1942.

As a "future," Bob was eligible for the NFL player draft which was held on April 19, 1944. Bob Kelley, as acting club secretary, noticed a letter of recommendation from the late Jeff Cravath, coach at the University of Southern California, praising his cross-town rival's quarterback. Kelley investigated Waterfield and selected him on the third round.

Following his senior season (1944), Waterfield played in the East-West Shrine game in San Francisco on January 1, 1945. In his team's 13-6 win over the East, Waterfield's running and passing led to both touchdowns. He averaged 6.7 yards from scrimmage as a ball carrier, running for a winning TD himself. He completed eleven passes, and his punting was, as one writer termed it, "unbelievable." His average for five punts: 59.4 yards ! !

When Waterfield joined the Cleveland Rams prior to the 1945 season, he had the spotlight on him, and he glowed well in it. That year, a Ram assistant coach was Bob Snyder, recognized as a master technician of quarterback play in the Shaughnessey, Halas and Leahy T-formations, and, himself, the man who developed Sid Luckman for George Halas' Bears and Johnny Lujack for Frank Leahy's Notre Dame Irish. Snyder also was a place-kicking specialist. Finding the natural talent in abundance in Waterfield, Snyder made Bob his special pupil in both phases of the game.

Waterfield that year led the Rams not only to their first winning season in history, but to a divisional title and to a thrilling one-point win over the Washington Redskins for the world championship. Bob became the first man ever to receive a unanimous vote as the NFL's Most Valuable Player. With Jim Benton as his main target, Waterfield's passes broke many records, and his six touchdowns the first nine times he tried his bootleg play (on which he carried the hidden ball deceptively away from the flow of the play) during the pre-season and league games brought him national fame and gave pro football a significant post-war boost.

The Rams moved to Los Angeles after the '45 season ended, and, in the years to come, Waterfield became "Mr. Ram." His passing, place-kicking and punting were hailed in stories and stats, but it was his quiet leadership on the field which won for him the respect of all of pro football . . . and which also played a large part in bringing the Rams three consecutive divisional crowns (1949, 1950, 1951), a tie for a fourth (1952), and a world title (1951).

Bob retired after the 1952 season.

Waterfield, his wife (screen star Jane Russell, whom he began dating when she was still a Van Nuys High School student), and their three children live in Sherman Oaks, in a home which Bob and Jane designed and built following the 1945 football season.

HAMP POOL Offense and Offensive Backs

In 1950 and 1951, Pool was a Ram assistant coach on offense, and the Ram teams of those years set a record number of team and NFL marks. With this in mind, Waterfield has assigned him to work with the offense and offensive backs. Hamp was an All-Coast fullback at Stanford and a top-rated NFL end with the Chicago Bears. In 15 of the last 17 seasons, he has coached, including head mentor assignments in the Navy, in the All-American Conference, with the Rams (1952-1954) and at Toronto. He re-joined the Rams in 1960.

TOM FEARS Offensive Ends

If a football coach is supposed to be accomplished at the techniques he teaches, then the Rams are well set. Particularly apt is Tom Fears, who, as a receiver par excellence for nine Ram years, ranks below only Don Hutson in the number of career receptions. Not shown in the record books is the ex-UCLAn's uncanny ability to get open and to run through traffic with the football. This is his second season as a Ram coach, following a year with the Packers in a similar capacity.

JIM DAVID Defensive Backfield

After holding his own against the Goliaths of the NFL for eight years, David was Waterfield's first choice to coach his defensive backs. At 5-10 and perhaps 180 when soaking wet, Jim offset his lack of size with pure aggressiveness for Detroit. The former Colorado State star has gone a long way to offset the injury-triggered collapse of recent Ram secondary units.

DON PAUL Defensive Line

Co-owner of what is fast becoming a chain of successful restaurants, Don Paul has found it impossible to put full time to those lucrative enterprises when there are football players to be coached. When he retired as an All-Pro linebacker and Ram captain in 1955, Don sat out one football year. In 1957 and 1958, he served as line coach for the College All-Stars in their annual game in Chicago, and in 1959 he became Ram defensive line coach.

VIC LINDSKOG Offensive Line

When Waterfield was seeking an NFL experienced staff of assistants. Vic Lindskog was a natural. With eight years as an outstanding center with the Eagles and a coach there for another three seasons, Lindskog knows what it's like to play on championship teams. This was true even in college. At Stanford he had played on a winner of ten straight season games and a Rose Bowl win over Nebraska. The Vancouver Lions and Bakersfield College rounded out the all-time All-Pro's pre-Ram coaching career. He joined the Rams in 1959.

EDDIE KOTAL Director of Player Scouting

Eddie Kotal has been connected with the club since 1946. He attended the University of Illinois in 1921 and then switched to Lawrence College. Kotal joined Green Bay as a halfback in 1925 and played for five years, including the Packers' first world championship team in 1929.

Eddie was head coach at Lawrence in 1930 and Wisconsin State Teachers from 1932 to 1942. He was backfield coach and head scout for the Packers from 1943 to 1946.

Ram Biographies

Allen, Duane — End-Defensive Back — Santa Ana College

Height: 6-4 Weight: 210 Age: 23 First Year

SCHOOL: A JC all-American at both Mt. San Antonio College in 1956 and at Santa Ana College in 1960, Allen comes to the Rams with highest recommendations from JC coaches, one of whom described him as "the best pro prospect in junior college ball during 1960." A standout as a pass receiver and a defensive halfback, Duane will be tried at both places. He has sprinter speed plus tremendous agility.

PERSONAL: Born in Alhambra on October 21, 1937. He won all-So. Calif. honors at Alhambra H.S.. He was consistently over 13 in the pole vault while at Santa Ana. Duane's hobby is singing. He is single.

Arnett, Jon — Offensive Halfback — Southern Cal

Height: 5-11 Weight: 194 Age: 26 Fifth Year

PRO: This will be Arnett's fifth year with the Rams and already he ranks among the greatest backs the club has had. Entering the 1961 season, the former SC flash ranks as the fifth most productive ground gainer in Rams history with 1837 yards. He is sixth in all-time pass receiving statistics with 120 receptions and 13th on the scoring list with 126 points. But statistics do not tell the full story on Arnett's abilities, for like a great painting he is best appreciated by the eyes as he picks his way around and through enemy defenses. Arnett, a first draft choice, has played in Pro Bowl during all four Ram seasons. Jon netted 1138 yards in 1960 on pass receptions, rushing and kick returns. Named outstanding offensive back in 1960 by Ye Olde Rams and Rams Fan Club.

SCHOOL: Named to several all-America teams at conclusion of his junior season at SC, Arnett was one of Trojan seniors limited to five games by Pacific Coast Conference edict. The edict accomplished what few SC opponents did in Jon's three years of varsity ball. He scored a total of 30 touchdowns in 25 games and in his junior year kicked 15 of 18 PAT attempts. The agile star also participated in track, running a 9.9 lap for 400-yard relay team and going over 25 feet in broad jump. Following senior year, Arnett played in East-West, Hula Bowl and College All-Star games. He graduated from Manual Arts High in Los Angeles.

PERSONAL: Born in Los Angeles on April 20, 1935, Jon is one of three sons born to Marc and Dorothy Arnett. His brothers are Bob and Bill. Off-season occupation is brokerage business; off-season avocation is golf, a sport in which he consistently cards scores in mid and high 70s. Jon is married to former Rose Bowl princess Yvonne Flint of Pasadena. Couple recently purchased new home in L.A.

Atkins, Pervis — Halfback — New Mexico State

Height: 6-1 Weight: 195 Age: 25 First Year

SCHOOL: Possibly the most exciting college back of the 1961 graduating crop, Atkins was drafted by the Rams following an equally spell-binding and productive junior season in 1959. Selected on the third round, Atkins lived up to the high choice by making AP and NEA All-American first teams as a halfback. Height: 6-6 Weight: 290 Age 26 Fourth Year

He has good speed and lateral movement for a man his size.

SCHOOL: Baker began his collegiate career at North Carolina College as a bullback fullback, but when his weight climbed to 300 pounds, he moved to tackle for his final two seasons. Playing under coach Herman Riddick, he made Negro all-America teams in both junior and senior seasons and did good job in 1957 College All-Star game.

PRO: Zeke broke into the Chicago Bear starting lineup two-thirds of the way into his rookie season 1954 . . . With the Bears strugggling at a .500 clip (4-4), Bratkowski took his turn at starting quarterback and led the Bears to wins in all of their last four games to finish at 8 and 4 . . . "The Brat" was hailed as the top rookie QB of the loop with a brilliant future . . . In 1955-56, Zeke was in the military service, and during that time Ed Brown grabbed the Bear reins and led his teammates to the 1956 divisional crown, winning the passing championship himself . . . Excepting during portions of 1960, Bratkowski never was able to overcome this established Brown status as No. 1 QB . . . Against the Rams, however, Bratkowski has been poison . . . Many believe he still has the same potential that made him a sensation in '54, when he was rated officially by the NFL as its 3rd best passer . . . Came to Rams, with Lindon Crow of Giants, as part of trade which sent Bill Wade to Bears and John Guzik to Giants.

Wilson, Tom — Halfback-Fullback — No College

Height: 6-0 Weight: 204 Age: 29 Sixth Year

PRO: One of the top bargains in Ram history, Wilson was signed as a free agent while playing for Shaw Air Force Base. Now, after five seasons as a Ram, he ranks fourth in all-time club rushing status with 1910 yards and an average of 5.53 per carry. In his rookie season of 1956, Tom set an NFL record (since broken) by gaining 223 yards in one game against Green Bay. He also led league in kickoff returns as a rookie, racing 103 yards with one. Best 1960 game was against Packers at Coliseum when he netted 90 yards rushing and 59 yards on pass receptions. Tom may get shot at starting fullback job this season.

SCHOOL: An all-state star in both football and basketball while at Hillside High in Durham, N.C. His first all-state football award came after a big season as a tackle. Tom also played baseball in high school and was considered almost as good a prospect as teammate Wes Covington, who went on to star for Milwaukee Braves. Wilson scored 44 touchdowns in three years of service ball.

PERSONAL: Born in Stamford, Conn. on September 1, 1932, Tom still continues to prove his sports versatility. He consistently golfs in low 70s and is high scorer for Rams basketball team.

Outlook

Most numerous are rookies at the offensive guard and tackle posts. Guard candidates include COP's Willie Hector, Oklahoma State's Harold Beaty and Allegheny's Bruce Olderman, all of whom were high draft choices. Additionally, free agents Dick Keelor of Long Beach State and Angelo Brovelli are accorded chances of catching on here. Leading tackle newcomers are New Mexico Highlands' Charles Cowan and Notre Dame's Joe Scibelli.

Top rookie defensive backs are No. 2 draft choice Elbert Kimbrough of Northwestern and No. 9 pick Duane Allen of Santa Ana College.

OFFENSE: Big question mark, of course, is at quarterback where a No. 1 man must be found among Bratkowski, Frank Ryan and Buddy Humphrey. Anticipated improvement at the offensive guard and tackle posts should help the quarterbacking situation, too. Familiarity with the staff's attack should help and over-all the picture looks improved.

DEFENSE: Biggest improvement should come from the defensive backfield where addition of Crow and shift of Matson should be big aids. If McKeever is as advertised and Pardee can avoid injuries which kept him out in key 1960 games, the linebacking should be stronger. Four-man defensive line seems set.
